Airman Leadership School deactivates

Brig. Gen. Michael Wiedemer, Sacramento Air Logistics Center commander, accepts a ceremonial senior airman insignia from Maj. Mark Johnson, 77th Mission Support Squadron commander, as Staff Sgt. Kimberly Fisk, Airman Leadership School instructor, looks on, during the McClellan ALS deactivation ceremony March 23. The insignia symbolizes the 922 senior airmen who completed ALS at McClellan through its final class March 17. All items displayed in the ALS building will be donated to the McClellan Aviation Museum. (Inset) Tech. Sgt. Ed Ramirez, ALS flight chief, locks the doors to Bldg. 35.

Unemployment benefit guidelines improved

By Sandra Kosmatin

Staff Writer

The McClellan Civilian Personnel Office recently announced new developments regarding the California unemployment benefits guidelines. The California Employment Development Department uses these guidelines to review all claims from McClellan employees.

These guidelines have been updated to accurately reflect the closure procedures at McClellan. Included in the guidelines is an improved, more in-depth and accurate explanation of the Voluntary Separation Incentive Program and Voluntary Early Retirement Authority.

The most significant change is the new condition, for this year, that recognizes VSIP/VERA employees can be required to separate prior to the Sept. 28 deadline.

"You may have heard rumors that everyone leaving McClellan will be eligible for unemployment benefits, that's not true," said Stan Schulte, Work Force Effectiveness Branch chief. "Although the personnel office is confident that EDD has a better understanding of our circumstances and will be more inclined to approve claims than they were in the past, the basic rules haven't changed," according to Schulte.

"If you leave even one day before you are required to separate, EDD will probably disapprove your claim, unless circumstances in your personal life convince them otherwise," he commented. "And that has happened."

A recent decision by an EDD Administrative Law Judge overturned many disqualifications of McClellan employees, according to Schulte. Some of those rever-

Filling out Census determines community needs

The Census Bureau is asking all active duty military personnel to make sure they are counted in Census 2000. Census information helps decision-makers understand where to build hospitals and highways and which neighborhoods need new schools, more services for the elderly or housing assistance. People who answer the census also help their communities obtain the correct amount of state and federal funding.

Officials from the Sacramento branch of the Census Bureau are asking the military men and women of McClellan Air Force Base to cooperate with their unit census representative.

Our Installation Census 2000 will be conducted April 3 through 5. Most military service members will be filling out two census forms. Armed forces personnel living in housing in the United States, either on or off an installation, will receive a household questionnaire. Housing on the installation is accounted for in the same way the Census Bureau does for housing in the surrounding area.

It is important for armed forces personnel living in housing to fill out both the household questionnaire and the special form they receive at work. The Census Bureau will eliminate any duplication during processing.

It is also important that everyone answer all the questions on the census forms. Answers are confidential and no data on any individual or family will be published. By law, the Census Bureau cannot share an individual's answers with others, including welfare agencies, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Internal Revenue Service, the courts, the police or the armed forces.

The census employees and armed forces personnel who help with the census at the installation are sworn to protect the confidentiality of all answers.

Anyone who breaks this law can receive up to five years in prison, $5,000 in fines or both.

The law works — millions of questionnaires were processed following the 1990 census without a single breach of trust.

For more information or if you would like to volunteer to assist with the Installation Census, call Master Sgt. Bill Klussmann at 643-0291. (Information compiled by the McClellan Census office.)

sals were based on personal circumstances outside the employment situation, while others were based on information from the employee about their situation at McClellan.

"If your claim for benefits is denied, be sure to file an appeal by the indicated deadline so you can get your day in court," Schulte emphasized. "Also, it's an unfortunate and cold hard fact, if you don't show up at the appeal hearing, the judge will dismiss your case outright."

Management is working closely with the personnel office by going on record to indicate when employees are being required to separate before Sept. 28, to improve, expedite and accurately process unemployment claims. "This information will be provided to EDD along with the wages information they require to process a claim," according to Schulte.

"Although employees are given a Standard Form 8, Notice to Federal Employees About Unemployment, when they separate, the EDD determines unemployment benefits, not the civilian personnel office," said Julie Chaudoin, McClellan employee relations specialist. To apply for unemployment benefits or obtain more information, call EDD at 1-800-300-5616.

Additional information can be obtained directly from the EDD by attending one of the monthly Occupational Exploration 1 classes held in Bldg. 8. This class is co-sponsored by EDD and the Sacramento Employment Training Agency, and includes a representative from EDD's Unemployment Insurance Department. To sign up for Occupational Exploration 1, call Judy Ramones, SETA representative, at 263-4019.

ADPE Tiger Team tames turn-in process

By Smokey Bassett

Public Affairs

A 10-member Automated Data Processing Equipment turn-in Tiger Team has been formed by the Logistics Directorate and will roll into action in mid-April, providing equipment turn-in assistance to ADPE custodians base wide.

The team, made up of military personnel from the 652nd Combat Logistics Support Squadron and LG, are being trained to assist ADPE custodians in accounting for and turning in excess ADPE assets in a timely and organized manner. Members will be dedicated to the team until no longer required, ensuring continuity with the turn-in process until the base is closed.

Initially, focusing on one directorate at a time, the team's primary mission is to assist appointed custodians with the ADPE turn-in process.

"This does not preclude normal ADPE turn-in by equipment custodians," cautioned the team's noncommissioned officer in charge, Master Sgt. Annette Gear. "The team was formed to assist, not replace, the custodian or their responsibility for their unit's equipment."

"The team was formed to assist, not replace, the custodian or their responsibility for their unit's equipment."

-- Master Sgt. Annette Gear,
Tiger Team NCOIC

The turn-in of ADPE is a closure issue and is a concern to all organizations, not just the custodians. Completing this process while adequate manpower is available will enhance the overall closure effort and reduce the workload on remaining personnel. For more information about the Tiger Team, call Gear at 643-0627.

Spacemaker named best in Air Force

By Jennifer Vargas

Staff Writer

After going head to head with numerous competitors throughout the Air Force, the Spacemaker newspaper proved itself to be the best of the best.

Officials recently made the announcement, naming the weekly publication the best, large funded newspaper in the Air Force.

"The team work and talents of the creative, public affairs staff, proved to be the linchpin that sealed the competition," said Maj. Robert Gonzales, director SM-ALC Public Affairs.

"When you work with such an outstanding group of professionals, it makes putting together the newspaper a breeze," said Robin Jackson, SM-ALC Public Affairs, Spacemaker editor.

This year's award continues the long-held tradition of honors awarded to the Spacemaker.

"The Spacemaker has quite a track record and a truly great reputation for being one of the Air Force's outstanding publications," said Gonzales.

The Spacemaker newspaper earned such accolades from officials for the continuous coverage it provided to its readers.

"We've worked really hard to offer our readers a publication chock-full of variety," Jackson said. "We do our best to give our readers the important news they need, as well as community information and human interest stories."

The first issue of the Spacemaker, formerly named the Sacramento Air Depot Beacon, was published in 1941. The weekly publication went through several name changes until it became permanently known as the Spacemaker in 1960.

Security forces streamline services

By Jennifer Vargas

Staff Writer

In response to the base closure, the 77th Security Forces Squadron is scaling back services beginning Oct. 1.

Gate hours are slated to change and several of the security force customer service functions will no longer be available.

Once the change takes place, McClellan Air Force Base will become proprietary jurisdiction, which, according to Master Sgt. Mark O'Neill, 77th SFS, means "the federal government has given up their right to exclusively exercise law enforcement powers," O'Neill explained. "The government will now exercise only rights associated with a property owner. What this means basically is that local law enforcement will have the first shot at taking cases as they arise on the installation. Security forces will still respond to situations and may still lawfully detain people violating local, state or federal laws and base regulations."

Though law enforcement actions are going to be transferred to the Sacramento Sheriff's Office, the 77th Security Forces Squadron will continue to remain on base to assist with law enforcement issues until closure.

NCOA scholarship deadline approaches

The Noncommissioned Officers Association offers 18 academic and four vocational awards to children of members; and nine academic and one vocational award to spouses of members at $900 each. Three special grants, at $1,000 each, are awarded each year. Deadline for submission is Friday. For more information, call Chief Master Sgt. Jim Sullivan at 643-6808 or Master Sgt. Gary Chase at 643-6259.

McClellan youths spring into action

By Alica Doyle
 Staff Writer

As the weather gets nice, the kids get antsy. Thanks to the 77th Services Division, they'll have plenty to play on this spring and summer. During the winter months, playground equipment at Freedom Park and Capehart housing were replaced.

According to Karen Sanders, McClellan Youth Center director, the playground in Capehart, adjacent to the youth center, was completely replaced, with the youth center investing more than $22,000 in play equipment. Preparation and replacement of the equipment took only two weeks.

Freedom Park also received a complete new playground. Ken Hyde, Services Division director, stated, "Services strives everyday to enhance the life of base personnel, and the playgrounds will help us attain that goal. Hopefully, McClellan's children will thoroughly enjoy the new equipment."

Additionally, Services repaired play areas at the McClellan Child Development Center making them ready for little hands and feet this spring.

Security force troop looks toward bright future

The spit shine on his shoes is enough to blind you. The creases in his uniform seem sharp enough to slice metal. His salute is crisp and swift – like that of a proud war hero. But there's more to this security forceman than his polished boots, precisely ironed garb and flawless salute.

Airman 1st Class Josh Moore, 77th Security Forces Squadron, is up before the sun and ready to tackle the day's duties as one of McClellan's elite gate flight members.

"My days usually begin at about 3:30 a.m.," said the 5-foot-9-inch, hazel-eyed security policeman. "Once I get on post, I make sure I've got all my gear in place."

This includes his weapon and radio.

Moore begins his six-hour shift at the "gate shack" first thing in the morning where he greets McClellan's work force, while checking for proper vehicle decals.

Moore, who has been a member of Team McClellan since he left technical school just over a year ago, says he joined the Air Force to give him an edge over the competition when he joins the civilian ranks of law enforcement.

Following in his parents' tracks, Moore plans to become a police officer after he finishes his degree and four-year enlistment.

"Both my parents have taken up careers in law enforcement," explained the California native. "It's what I know, and it's what I want to do."

But, according to this mild-mannered, 21-year-old, his journey towards his goal in law enforcement goes beyond his family's footsteps and own wishes for success.

According to Moore, his coworker, Airman 1st Class Paul Grimes, 77th SFS, has been a big push behind the completion of his goals.

"Paul has been a great source of motivation for me," Moore said. "He's pushed me in the right direction to achieve my goals. Whether it be school, my job ... anything. We keep each other motivated."

As a matter of fact, Moore and Grimes have been motivating each other since basic training. The duo also completed technical school together before moving on to McClellan.

The two have even gone on temporary duty to Saudi Arabia in support of Operation Southern Watch where Moore earned an achievement medal. And, according to Moore, the four months he spent TDY in the desert have been some of the most memorable moments while in the Air Force.

Airman 1st Class Josh Moore, 77th Security Forces Squadron, authorizes entry onto the base after checking for the proper vehicle decal.

Though he missed his wife Kristy of one year, he says the time spent away from home gave him a different perspective on life and the military.

"It's amazing how many people you meet from various walks of life," explained Moore. "You suddenly realize how big the world is and how different we all are. The Air Force has allowed me to experience some of what the world has to offer, and for that, I'm thankful."

"Procedures will remain the same for people requiring assistance," O'Neill said. "Dial 911 for emergency situations, and your call will be responded to. For non-emergency cases, call the Sacramento County Sheriff's Office or go to the community center [located at Watt and Antelope]."

Other changes in services include the closure of pass and ID and the visitor center. People wishing to renew vehicle registration must go to Travis or Beale Air Force bases. Access to the base after Oct. 1, however, will not require vehicle decals. After hour visitors without proper identification will need to call the Peacekeeper Gate guard and be sponsored on the installation. Other issues concerning pass and ID will be dealt with by remaining security force members, according to O'Neill.

"We feel the security of personnel residing on McClellan will be largely unaffected," said O'Neill. "The Sacramento Sheriff's Department has thus far shown themselves to be a very responsive organization that will fill in wonderfully. In spite of changes to jurisdiction and activities, security forces personnel are not mere security guards. Failure to obey an officer's instructions will still carry the same weight as before."

NEW GATE HOURS

77th Security Forces Squadron hours beginning October 1 are as follows:

Peacekeeper Gate: Open and unmanned 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Open and manned 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Palm Gate: Open and unmanned 5:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.; closed 6 p.m. to 5:30 a.m. Closed weekends/Holidays.

Bell Gate: Open and unmanned 4:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.; closed 6 p.m. to 4:30 a.m. Closed weekends/Holidays.

Navaho Gate: Manned 24 hours

77th Support Group opens resale store

By Jennifer Vargas
Staff Writer

Beginning April 5, the 77th Services Division is opening a non-appropriated funds resale store for Department of Defense civilian personnel, active duty, reserve and retired military/civilian personnel or those with a current identification card.

The store, located in Bldg. 263 F at 5033 Roberts Ave., will have items for sale including household furniture such as tables, lamps and chairs as well as recreational equipment including rubber rafts, ski equipment, snow boards, tents and more.

"Some items are available for purchase while others are being sold through sealed bid," said Jonnie Johnson, 77th Services Division, logistics closure office.

Sealed bids are submitted on paper with the price the buyer wishes to pay for an item. The customer with the highest bid is given the opportunity to purchase the item.

Other items that are of high value and in demand, including a paddle boat, a folding boat and two kayaks, are being sold through sealed bid, according to Johnson.

"This is a great opportunity for the folks to pick up some great items at a great price," Johnson said. "Not to mention being able to get a piece of McClellan's history before the base closes."

The resale store will be open as long as items are available through base closure. Hours of operation are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month. Cash, checks or credit cards will be accepted with proper identification.

For more information, call 643-6660.

The deadline is noon, Wednesday for possible publication in the following Thursday's issue. Only one Swap ad per household per week, up to 50 words, may be submitted.

However, the ad can apply to more than one category, such as items wanted/trade, vehicles, furniture and yard sales. Spacemaker reserves the right to edit. No ads for money-making businesses, including daycare, or the sale of firearms or firearm accessories will be accepted. To run a swap ad again, it must be resubmitted. For more information, call the Spacemaker at 643-6100.
